The Impro Melbourne Approach

Improvisation, at its core, is about being present, responsive, and collaborative.

Drawing on over 30 years of experience, Impro Melbourne develops improvisational capability to strengthen communication, trust, and teamwork. Our programs prioritise learning by doing, using adaptive facilitation that responds to group dynamics and organisational context. The result is energising, inclusive training that delivers practical tools participants can apply immediately in the workplace.

Team Building & Collaboration

Building trust, connection, and safety

Our team-focused workshops strengthen rapport, resilience, and collaboration. Participants explore how trust is built moment-by-moment, learning to support one another, communicate clearly, and respond constructively under pressure.

Key focus areas include:

- Trust and confidence within teams
- Collaboration and shared responsibility
- Positive responses to challenge and failure
- Strengthening team culture and morale

Communication & Listening

Developing clarity, presence, and connection

Effective communication begins with listening. These workshops develop participants' ability to stay present, actively listen, and respond constructively in conversations, meetings, and high-pressure situations.

Key focus areas include:

- Active listening and inclusion
- Clear, confident communication
- Building understanding and rapport
- Reducing miscommunication and blockers

Leadership Development

Leading with adaptability and empathy

Our leadership programs equip participants with improvisational tools to lead confidently in uncertain and fast-moving environments. Leaders learn how to remain adaptable, support others in the moment, and navigate challenging conversations with clarity and confidence.

Key focus areas include:

- Adaptive leadership skills
- Emotional intelligence and empathy
- Navigating change and uncertainty
- Supporting and empowering others

Innovation & Mindset

Encouraging creativity, openness, and momentum

Innovation requires openness and a willingness to build on ideas. These workshops help teams move beyond hesitation and risk-avoidance, fostering a mindset of curiosity, creativity, and constructive momentum.

Key focus areas include:

- "Yes, And" thinking
- Creative problem-solving
- Valuing diverse perspectives
- Building on ideas rather than blocking them

Impro Melbourne Modules

Our workshops are designed using a flexible suite of proven Impro Modules. Modules can be combined, adapted, and sequenced to align with your organisation's goals.

1 Happy Failure

Promotes resilience and confidence by reframing failure as a learning opportunity. Participants build comfort with risk-taking, creativity, and recovery under pressure.

2 Make Your Partner Look Good

Develops a culture of respect, support, and shared success. Participants practise noticing, encouraging, and elevating others in real time.

3 Starting Positive

Strengthens trust and teamwork by shifting default responses from defensive to constructive, even in high-pressure environments.

4 Yes, And!

Builds innovation mindset and collaboration by teaching participants to accept, build, and expand on ideas rather than shutting them down.

5 Active Listening

Enhances inclusion and collaboration by developing presence, awareness, and genuine listening skills that value diverse contributions.

These modules are selected and tailored based on your desired outcomes, team dynamics, and organisational context.

Role Play

Impro Melbourne provides experienced improvisers to support role play and simulation-based learning within your organisation.
Working from a brief supplied by organisers, our actors step into realistic workplace scenarios to help employees practise, explore, and refine skills in a safe and supported environment.

Role play actors are particularly effective for:

- Practising real workplace conversations
- Building confidence through practice
- Strengthening communication and leadership skills
- Providing consistent, repeatable learning experiences

Impro Melbourne's role play actors bring professionalism, adaptability, and emotional intelligence to each session, helping organisations turn theory into practice through learning by doing.
